

Sensory Equipment for the Home Environment

Many of our children have a strong need to move. Movement helps them stay focused and able to manage in a difficult unpredictable world. Movement opportunities are essential components of their everyday needs and therefore if you can provide some of the activities within the list of 'Sensory Rich activities within the home environment' this would support your child greatly.

Below is a list of equipment that can be purchased online to support children's sensory needs within the home environment. Some children will find some the equipment really beneficial but may not work for all! Safety always comes first and if you feel that your child could be at risk or that they appear to be distressed when using, discontinue immediately! There are likely to be other cheaper versions available online, the list is just provided to show you suggestions.
